I hear them crying; and rushing into the drawing-room, fancy the shock the parents received, when they beheld Emma and Arabella huddled up in one corner of the sofa, and weeping as if their little hearts were breaking. Where are Ida and Tobo? They went out, ma, directly you and pa were gone; and when it got dark we were afraid, and couldn t help crying. Such was the doleful account sobbed out by the little girls. Gone out I gasped forth husband and wife. Really, I must make an example of that boy, says Mr. Paragreen in an ominous voice; he shall be made to hear reason, I am determined. And Ida! exclaimed Mrs Paragreen, she s 4 0 twenty times worse than Tobo;--boys...
