Excerpt: .whisper he is coming, We can hear his welcome feet, With bright eyes, And merry cries, They cease awhile from play; And light the Christmas tapers To cheer thee on thy way. VI. And memory wafteth back again The scenes of olden times, When the Waits at midnight woke.i, And we listened to the chimes, With the mellow rise and ringing Of the bells sweet voices singing, A healing song of welcome, which the echoes loudly cheer; As they start up from the hills And dance o er the frozen rills To hear the tidings onward, that Christmas draweth near. VII. With the old-fashioned flagon, And flaming snap dragon, The chestnuts we threw in the embers pure glow; The terror fraught story Of ghosts lank and gory, And the kisses we stole neath the mistletoe bough. VIII. The forfeit and fine, And hot elder...
